

FREE DESEXING FOR HIGH RISK-DOGS: Council Animal Services Team Leader Kerry Kawe and Council Compliance Manager John Youngson share the message.

Free desexing of 'high-risk' dogs

Council is offering free desexing of 'high-risk' dogs as part of a $40,000 funding package provided by the Government ahead of its proposed law change.

The proposed law change, which is likely to take effect in the next few months, affects the way menacing and dangerous dogs are kept. One of the requirements under the new law is the neutering of all high-risk dogs. There are currently 129 dogs in Invercargill that are considered high-risk, and owners will be visited by Animal Services staff who will discuss the proposed law change and free neutering.

Council's Compliance Manager, John Youngson, said people had from now until June 30, 2017, to get in touch with Council and take advantage of the offer.

"It is also a first-in-first-served programme. People will be issued a purchase order that they can take to any vet clinic in Invercargill to have their dog neutered. Dogs that are not already microchipped can have this done for free also," he said.

Council's Legal Advisor, Michael Morris, said the changes were expected to become law soon.

"While the Council has had a bylaw about this for a number of years, the proposed changes will strengthen this by making it a requirement under the Dog Control Act," he said. Further requirements of the proposed Law include

- Keeping high-risk dogs in a fenced area at home which allows visitors dog-free access to at least one house entrance.
- Displaying signs at the front of the property alerting people of a high-risk dog.
- Ensuring dangerous or menacing dogs wear collars identifying them as high-risk. These dogs must also wear muzzles and be on a leash in public places.

- Obtaining a high-risk dog owner licence.
- Seeking consent from the local authority to transfer the dog to a new owner.
- Informing any new owner that the dog is classified.

My Invercargill online tool available on ICC website

A new online tool, called My Invercargill, has been launched to provide another means for people to interact with the Invercargill City Council. It is the first local authority in New Zealand to make use of this application.

My Invercargill can be used on any device connected to the internet, such as a smart phone, PC, or tablet. It allows people to lodge a request for service, view their previous requests, or make a Council-related payment. More initiatives are being developed and will be brought on line in the future.

Council Customer Services Team Leader Phil Rhodes said My Invercargill provided people with a fast and efficient way to get in touch with Council.

"Councillors are keen to use technology to help improve customer service. Our Team looks forward to seeing the benefits it will bring for both staff and customers," he said.

Under the My Request section, people can ask questions or report issues from a number of areas, such as dog complaints, overgrown sections, parking/abandoned cars, Parks and Reserves, property files ($10 fee applies), rates, roads/footpaths, streetlights, water/drainage, wheelie bins, booking building/plumbing inspections, or "other" issues. Up to three photos can be added if appropriate - and you can store your personal details for future use.

Payment types currently available include: rates, infringements, animals, re-registration of dogs and debtors. The My Requests section is a user's personal record of requests submitted to Council through My Invercargill.

More details, including terms and conditions are available on the Council website, www.icc.govt.nz. The address for the new tool is www.myinvercargill.nz/ which can be saved to PC desktops or to the home screen of a smartphone or tablet.

While requests can be lodged 24/7, Council staff monitor My Invercargill from 8am to 5pm Monday to Friday.
