

Invercargill City Council

Electing 12 City Councillors

Bevan SMITH

LETS GO Invercargill

My principal place of residence is in the Invercargill City Council area.

Originally from Gore, I moved to Auckland for the big city corporate experience, before making the good decision to come home to my roots in the South, and now living in Invercargill.

Working as a financial adviser, I engage with variety of people throughout the community and help them find financial security.

Outside of work, I am a family man who enjoys outdoor adventures. I have a keen interest in local and national politics, which has drawn me to stand for council and being part of a team developing an exciting future for the city.

My general positions are: enhancing the vibrancy of the city, getting the museum open as fast as possible, and keeping future rates increases at or below inflation.

I believe council needs to be an enabler of development and not a roadblock. It also needs to focus on its core functions, like roading and water infrastructure.
